Written for the Memorial Association, of Fredericksburg, Va.
Gather the sacred dust,
Of the warriors tried and true,
Who bore the flag of our nation's trust,
And fell in the cause, though lost, still just.

And died for me and you!
Gather them each and all,
From the private to the chief,
Come they from hovel or princely hall,
They fell for us, and for them should fall,
The tears of a nation's grief.

Gather the corpses strewn,
O'er many a battle plain,
From many a grave that lies so lone;
Without a name and without a stone,
Gather the Southern slain.

We care not whence they came,
Dear is their lifeless clay;
Whether unknown or known to fame,
Their cause and country is still the same,
They died—and wore the gray.

Wherever the brave had died,
They should not rest apart,
Living, they struggled side by side—
Why should the hand of death divide
A single heart from heart.

Gather their scattered clay,
Wherever it may rest;
Just as they marched to the bloody fray,
Just as they fell on the battle day,
Bury them breast to breast.

The foe need not dread,
This gathering of the brave;
Without sword or flag, and with countless dead—
Out of each lonely grave.

The foe need not trounce;
They are all powerless now—
We gather them here, and lay them down,
And tears and prayers are the only crown,
We bring to each each blow.

And the dead thus meet the dead,
While the living cry them weep;
And the men whom Lee and Stonewall led,
And the brave that once together bled,
Together still shall sleep.

HOW ALBERT DELMANIE CAME TO GRIEF.

BY FLORENCE AYLWELL.

The opera of Faust was the beginning of evil; for, by some strange interposition of evil fate, it was, in truth, a witch, a human incarnation, of one of the weird women of the ghostly Sabbath, who sang the role of Gretchen—a gorgeous, sensuous Italian.

There she stood, magnificent in beauty, voluptuous in contour; voiced like a siren, draped like a statue, looking when her eyes were cast down, pure and statuesque, when she raised them, like what she was—a radiant devil.

And there sat Albert Delmanie, gazing at the embodiment of his own evil destiny, breathing in her voice, drinking in her beauty, the maddest of all the madmen there.

Strange that he should rush into the very jaws of the yawning gulf of passion while the music was sending up the hot breath of the abode of Mephistopheles, and sobbing, sighing, moaning out its piteous lesson in the accents of the opera which, though inferior as music, absolutely evolves what Don Giovanni only suggests.

And it was sad, too, to see that beautiful American face which, to the correctness of feature that even Lamartine, America's tragedian, allows the native type to possess, added that openness of expression resulting from a free birth and a free life; sad indeed, to see it become as dark with the simoon of passion as that of any European there, even those who had been bronzed in Paris and Vienna, and scorched in the love fires of Naples and Florence.

Mrs. Delmanie, the mother of Albert, was present in her private box, and beside her sat Ione Travers, the young girl whom the mother longed to see the wife of her son. Ione gazed without seeing, conscious only that the eyes of the Italian repelled her.

Albert had made no vows to Ione. There she sat, the true Gretchen, (had Gretchen remained as when Faust saw her enter the church,) and gazed quietly at the scene before her. She was a lovely study, the purest thing, one of our own pure girls; frank, ingenuous, modest, good and looking so, and there sat Albert, blind as are only those who will not see.

The golden mass of radiant locks, to the pure snowy skin, was added in Ione's beauty the grace of the native type, oval in form, and without that tendency to the grotesque which mars the face of French women, even when pretty; without the tendency to coarseness, which, except in youth, lessens the extreme beauty of the English type; without the strongly defined lines of the Italian contour, the breadth that mars the Russian face; her face was sweeter than the Roman; more expressive though somewhat less absolutely regular than the Greek; nobler than any other type in the world, and, in its pure American beauty, it was one to attract even an indifferent eye. The brow broad though rather low than high, the nose delicate though decided, the lips chaste though full of feeling, the chin not weak, though not rounded upward in the antique mold—a form which is apt to become too decided after the first years of youth—with dark blue eyes containing a spot of gray in the center, with the brightness of innocence and the depths of feeling within them, and lashes of the darkest brown, all these component parts blended in a perfect whole. Her beauty was suggestive—suggestive of a mental heaven.

Turn to the Italian now. Mark that face where white paint is substituted for the pallor of feeling, and the clear tint which departs after purity of life is at an end; where red gives a new color to lips pallid by last night's orgie; where the features are already beginning to lose their contour they had in Giovanna Laschetti's youth, where the throat is thickened and venous already, and where the hair—black as night and its mysteries—is, despite the white and gold powder with which it is disguised, powerless to purify the face. For those eyes, let them strive as they will to give pure looks, are full of fatal fire beneath their treacherous softness.

What a voice! Liquid, lovely, lulling, and languid.
Suddenly the eyes of the Laschetti met those of Albert. The young man turned whiter than the camellia he was twisting in his fingers, and which, previous to the appearance of the prima donna, he had pilfered from Ione's bouquet.

It was the scene outside of the church, the scene where Gretchen struggles against the whispers of the devil, and yields and does not go into the church. "Dannata sei!" says Mephistopheles, and the music renders the tearing of a heart in unutterable anguish.

It is just possible that Giovanna had seen the beautiful American youth before; but when she bent her eyes full upon him, it was at the moment when the devil had conquered. Her wonderfully expressive eyes had a heart-rending power. How the devil must have chuckled at that moment! He had things all his own way.

She superb features of Albert's face betrayed his emotion. His lips quivered, the dark gray of his intense eyes grew black; the pupils dilated passionately, and he looked down, and thought that the stage, with this woman upon it, seemed to rock, a little, and she bent forward entrancing him with her concentrated gaze, till he almost gasped as he leaned back in the box where he sat. The thing that gazed at him, feeling his beauty in her passionate Italian heart, had at that moment a fatal, never utterly to be forgotten beauty. What large, Morgan eyes she had! Large naturally, and exaggerated by art, they seemed a lovely sea into which his soul was sinking.

The last look that the Laschetti gave, previous to departing life theatrically, was at Albert. It gave a color to his whole life, a dark shade that it would not have worn had that evening not been passed as it was. It changed the whole destiny of the Laschetti, whose only law was love—love as Italians know it and class it.

To place his mother and Ione in Mrs. Delmanie's carriage, to hurriedly excuse himself, to absently implore an introduction to Giovanna of Paulo Rossi, a dog of an Italian to whom he had never given any thing until now but nods that were equivalent to kicks, but who, behind the scenes that evening, had absolutely touched the hand of the diva as he picked up one of her bouquets; then to obtain a deep look from Giovanna, whose foot was resting on the step of her carriage as Rossi dragged Albert forward, to follow the carriage and spend an hour walking before what he supposed to be her windows at the New-York Hotel; was all, Delmanie was convinced, that stood that night between him and insanity.

The Laschetti had dropped a red fuchsia, accidentally of course, as she entered her carriage and drove off with out any further acknowledgment of Albert's presentation than the long look she had given him: as he gazed at the blood-red leaves he wondered that, having touched her, the flower did not become a ruby.
And she would sleep—she who had "murdered sleep" for so many that night. He could fancy the expressive, somewhat massive, yet glorious features subdued into stillness when the large, heavily fringed eyelids should close, the unbound hair sweeping the pillow; the dangerous eye veiled; and he wondered if he should ever meet this deep look in her eyes again as he had met them that night. Perhaps she was displeased at his boldness. With that thought his blood seemed to chill.

Could he have entered the mystic temple, he would have seen a woman from whose face the theatrical maquilage had been removed, a dark, haggard woman, though young; not young in expression now; a woman with bloodshot eyes; a relaxed and pallid mouth; from which all its witchery had departed, with heavy lines beneath her eyelids; a woman whose cheeks were an awful pallor, and who tossed in her sleep and moaned, "Ti detesto!" but that might be from some opera. Still you would have fancied her pursued by a danger.

The morning found Albert at the rehearsal. The Laschetti, who knew what she was about, sang with an embroidered veil over her face, and Albert saw only the fatal mirage of her eyes. A few days after he was introduced into that heaven of heavens, the Laschetti's parlor; where a demi-jour of rosy tint had been established and a becoming light created.

The grain of the skin will show by daylight, whatever precaution may be taken to prevent it, and Albert saw that his idol was dark and not of an ivory, but rather a dusky darkness, the hue, in fact, which belongs to the skin of Italian women of the lower order. But what features! how marvellous in their massive contour! what eyes! there lay the lure! and how the liquid Italian—Albert's favorite of all languages—rolled from her lips! How her eyes accompanied his voice, both singing the gamut of passion!

Albert had conceived for this woman a passion so deep, so absolute, so subject that nothing less than to make her his for life could satisfy him. The Laschetti was bad enough, as you will see, but it was of his own free will that Albert Delmanie, the son of a pure mother, a man who might have married a beautiful girl, possessed of every good quality, a girl with whom a marriage would have conferred every social advantage; a man whose father had borne an untarnished name; and whose own life had been unmarred by any unkindness on the part of his parents, offered his hand in lawful marriage to an Italian adventuress, forgetting honor, mother, father, position, the future, in this fatal passion that had whelmed his soul.

The Italian had been accustomed, poor wretch! to being approached with what, to a pure woman, would have been insult. Hers had been a dark life, but when this proposal was made to her, the creature glowed and shone with radiance; she absolutely radiated beauty, and threw herself into the arms of the man she instantly resolved to sacrifice to his own madness, with a wild moan of joy. What kisses she bestowed upon him! how he clutched her to his breast and then repulsed her, saying, poor soul! "Can it not be to-morrow? Will you be my wife to-morrow?"

He was mad; you know, and alas! not the first nor the last that talent and diabolical beauty have found and will find as a sacrifice.

If any one of his friends had caused him to be incarcerated, till the Laschetti was out of America, in a madhouse, it would have been a kind act, a deed of charity.

They were married on the following Friday, and the carriage in which they drove to a house of handsome exterior, which Albert had hired and caused to be furnished in that short space of time, was followed by a man whose face wore the impress of every hideous passion that ever tortured the votaries of sin.

You have seen the false Gretchen, Giovanna, the true Gretchen, Ione; Faust in Albert, (do you remember how young Faust becomes at heart, after the metamorphosis?) behold, now, Mephistopheles!

It is singularly disagreeable and rare, apart from the Italian type, to meet with a human being whose undisguised and irrefragable identity directly suggests to the most unbiased mind that nature intended him for the role of the devil in the life-drama, to play the duenna with himself and others.

Paulo Rossi needed no curling black lines upon his brow, no red coat slashed with black upon his back, no shoes shaped like a cloven foot, no stage demon laugh to suggest by his presence both infernal fires and diabolic deeds; yet it was not beauty that was lacking in his face. The devil would not be so powerful if he were ugly, and Rossi was as handsome as Ary Scheffer's devil, where he is represented as tempting the Saviour upon the high mountain.

What terrible power shone in Paulo's eyes! It was a fearful thing to meet them, for their lustre could soften, as it had when he had lured many a poor victim to the gambling-table, many a woman to her ruin, and Giovanna Laschetti to what would be her doom in the end.

She thought she had escaped him now. She had bribed him to leave the country, had paid him the money to do so; had given him a large sum beside; but he knew of wealth that was Albert Delmanie's—wholly his own—the inheritance left him by his father, independently of his remaining parent, and Paulo resolved to remain in New-York. In a few months the money given by Giovanna was gone.

What did it matter to Rossi that, notwithstanding the mother of Albert was wild with grief at the knowledge of the step her son had taken, the young couple were madly happy! What did he care for the imploring looks that Giovanna would give him, when he would draw near threateningly if their carriage halted in the park of stopped at any door! What cared he that she had already turned a diamond bracelet into money to meet the demands which some mysterious power enabled him to make upon her! Flint was soft as snow in comparison to Rossi's heart, and the imploring, quivering hands more than once stretched out to him from the carriage window only excited a sneer sufficiently diabolic to have made the fortune of any actor in the role for which nature had fitted the Italian, and which he had passed his life in performing.

CONTINUED NEXT WEEK.

WHAT HAPPENED TO OUR HOUSE.
After we were married, we'll say about a year, when morin' there was a terrible commotion in our house—old wimmin a runnin' in an out, and finally the do' (the door) he cum. I was in a great hurry myself, wantin' to hear, I hardly knoeed what, but arter a while, an ole granny of a woman, as had been busy about that, poked her head into the room whar I was a walkin' about and seel:

"Mr. Sporum, hit's a gal!"
"What?" says I.
"A gal?" she ses; and with that she pops her head back agin.

Well, thinks I, I'm the dady uv a gal; and begin to feel my keepin' mite-ly—I'd rather it was a boy tho', thinks I, fur then he'd feel nearer to me, as how he'd bare my name and there'd be less chance for the Sporum to run out, but considerin' everything, a gal will do mite well. Jist then the ole nuss pokes her head in agin and ses, "Another wan, Mr. Sporum; a fine boy."

"Another," says I, "that's rather crowdin' things on to a feller."
She laffed and poked her head back. Well, thinks I, this is no joke sure. I'll have family enuff to do me in a few years.

Jis then the ole she devil (always shall hate her) pokes her head in; and ses,

"Another gal, Mr. Sporum."

"Another what," says I.

"Another gal," says she.

"Well, says I, go rite strate an te'll Sal I won't stand it, I don't want 'em, an I ain't goin' to have 'em; dus she think I'm a Turk? or a Mormon? or Brigham Young? that she go fur to have tribbles? three at a pop! Dus she think I'm worth a hundred thousand dollars? that I'm John Jacob Astor, or Mr. Roschile? that I kin afford tribbles, an clothe an feed an school three children at a time? I ain't a goin' to stand it no how, I didn't want 'em, an it's a going to now, nur no other time. Hain't I been a good an dootiful husband to Sal? Hain't I kep in doors uv a nite, an quit chawn tobacker an smokin segars just to please her? Hain't I attended devine worship reglar? Hain't I bought her all the bonnets an frocks she wanted? an then fur her to go an have tribbles. She nodd better an had'n' orter dun it. I didn't think Sal wud serve me sich a trick now. Have I ever stole a horse? Have I ever done enny mean trick, that she would serve me in this way? An with that I laid down on the settee, an felt orful bad, an the more I tho't about it, the wus I felt.

Presently Sals mammy, ole Miss Jones, cum in an ses,

"Peter, cum in an see what purty chillun you've got."

Chillun! says I you'd better say a hole litter. Now Miss Jones, I luv Sal you no, an have tried to make a good husband, but I call this a scaly trick, an ef thars enny law in this country, I'm goin' to see ef a woman kin hev tribbles, an make a man take keer uv 'em. I ain't goin to begin to do it, ses I."

With that she laffed-fit to kill her self, an made all sorts of fun of me, and sed enny other man wud be proud to be in my shoes. I told her I'd sell out mite cheap ef enny body wanted to take my place. Well the upshot uv it wus, that she persuaded me that I was rong, and got me to go into the room, whar they all wus.

When I got in, Sal looked so lovin at me, and reached out her little hands so much like a poor, dear little helpless child, that I forgot everything but my luv for her, and folded her gently to my hart like a precious treasure, and felt like I didn't keer ef she had too and forty uv 'em. Just then number wun set up a whine like a young pup, and all the ballance folloed. Them thrubbles knoeed their daddy.

Well, every thing wus made up, an Sal promised she wud never do it agin; an since then I hev been at work settin, workin all day to make bred fur them tribbles, an bissy nuss uv 'em at nite. The fact is, ef I didn't have a mite good constitution, I'd had to give in long ago. Number wun has the colick an wakes up number too an he wakes up number three, an so it goes, an me a flyin about all the time to keep them quiet.

SKATING.—The way a "green 'un" tried skating is found described in these words, to-wit:

A slant to the right with the right foot, a slant to the left with the left foot—and just then we saw something on the ice and stopped to pick it up. On our feet again—two slants to the right and one to the left with the left foot—and just then we saw something on the ice and stopped to pick it up. On our feet again two slants to the right and one to the left accompanied with a loss of confidence. Another side with the right foot, and we sat down with fearful rapidity, but with little if any elegance. What a set down it was, for we made a dent in the ice not unlike an old-fashioned butter-dish! Just then one of the ladies remarked: "Oh look, Mary, that fellow with the plug hat ain't got his skates on the right place." Ditto, thought we. Just then a ragged little devil sung out as he passed us, "Hello old timber legs!" and we rose suddenly and put after him. Three slides to the right, two to the left, and away went our legs, one to the east and the other to the west, causing an immense fissure in our pants, and a picture of a butter dish in the cold—oh, how cold!—ice. The lady—we knew she was orful by the remark she made—again spoke and said: "Oh look, Mary, that chap with the plug hat on has has set down on his handkerchief to keep ffrom taking cold. We rose about as graceful as a saw horse, when Mary said, "Guess it 'aint a handkerchief, Jane," and Mary was right.

A YANKEE PRAYER.—In the State of Ohio, there resided a family, consisting of an old man, of the name of Beaver, and his three sons, all of whom were hard "pets," who had often laughed to scorn the advice and entreaties of a pious, though very eccentric, minister, who resided in the same town. It happened one of the boys was bitten by a rattlesnake; and was expected to die, when the minister was sent for in great haste. On his arrival, he found the young man very penitent and anxious to be prayed with. The minister calling on the family, knelt down and prayed in this wise: "O Lord! we thank thee for rattlesnakes. We thank thee because a rattlesnake has bit Jim. We pray thee send one to bite John; and one to bite Bill; send one to bite Sam; and, O Lord! send the biggest one you have to bite the old man; for nothing but rattlesnakes will ever bring the Beaver family to repentance."

A woman in New Jersey swore her son had worked on a farm ever since he was born. To the question, what did he do the first year, the attorney was astounded to receive the ready answer, "He milked."

Weak doses of washboards are now recommended to ladies who complain of dyspepsia. Young men troubled in the same way may be cured by a strong preparation of wood saws.

Where are you going so fast, Mr. Smith? demanded Mr. Jones. "Home sir; don't detain me; I have just bought my wife a new bonnet, and I am trying to get home before the fashion changes."

The steady lights of heaven waver in the water; some of the great lights of earth in brandy and water.

Democratic Convention.

The State Democratic Convention

was held last Friday in Frankfort, and from all we can learn, it was one of the grandest, as well as the greatest gathering the people of Kentucky ever held. Every county in the State was represented, except three, and the crowd was so great that the good people of Frankfort were unable to entertain them all. For that however they were not to blame because it was not believed that such a host would come together, at this season of the year. The people of Kentucky are certainly aroused at last, and are beginning to think and believe, that unless they assist in guiding the ship

of State, that constitutional rights, people and all, will perish together.

They evinced an interest in State affairs last Friday, an earnestness that will carry dismay and despair to the heart of every radical in Kentucky,

and give strength and encouragement to every democrat in the United States. The lovers of Constitutional liberty everywhere, are rejoiced at the firmness and determined stand taken by their friends in Kentucky—for the democracy here, is a nucleus, ar-round which, those of other States can rally. We have faith in democratic principles, and the democratic party,

and no triumph, of the hell-hounds
who attempt to rule the national government, can change our firm belief

in their entire and final overthrow,
and vindication of a Constitutional party and principles. Our reason for this belief and firmness is because democracy has come nearer the great

Christian and humanitarian principles taught in the New Testament, than any other doctrines preached by any other party, and as certain as truth

will triumph over falsehood, and right over wrong, so certain will democracy

triumph over all other principles tought under the sun.

The harmony of the convention was remarkable throughout. Every thing was transacted with perfect good feeling and without a solitary jar. This is surprising, when we consider the large number of delegates present.

We confess ourselves astonished, no little at the spirit exhibited by those who were defeated for position before the Convention, and very considerably

surprised at the magnanimous spirit exhibited by the brave Col. Wolford, whom we believe should have been made Lt. Governor, for we respect any man who will stand for what he believes is right, and resists that which he believes is wrong. Col. Wolford is destined to receive attention from the democratic party. We endorse the entire democratic ticket, but desire to say that the democratic party owe Mr. Stevenson nothing. He is always been on hand when the party has favors to distribute; but has never a word to say for his party, or a helping hand to lend, when that party

needs assistance. He is not our style, and will be voted for simply because the party nominated him, not for anything that he has sacrificed for his principles or party.

Ex-Governor J. L. Helm, was nominated for Governor, one of the greatest and best men in the nation. His name is a tower of strength, and he

will carry this State by an overwhelming majority. He is a front rank man, and we shall feel honored when we have the privilege of voting for him.

The balance of the candidates are all good and true men, and will like the name mentioned above receive the united vote of the triumphant democracy of Kentucky.

The people of Harrison will meet,
it is hoped next court day, in Cynthi-ana, and ratify these nominations. Let us have a grand rally, and a good time generally. At that time, we will know our candidate for Congress, in this district; and he will be here, whoever he may be, and give us a good speech.

The democracy of old Harrison, are no back-boneless drones; or whining grannies, who gas and blow about their rights, and like some we wot of never defend them; but they are ready at all times to stand by the right, and resist

the wrong.

(From the Louisville Courier.)

Our Ticket.

In accordance with the fiat of the representatives of the people, assembled at Frankfort on yesterday, we

this morning place at our mast-head the name of Hon. John L. Helm as our candidate for Governor, and that of

John W. Stephenson as our candidate for Lieutenant Governor.

Our information from Frankfort is that the convention was the largest ever held in the State; that it was entirely harmonious, and that the very best feelings prevailed. The number of delegates was much larger than that at the 1st of May Convention of last year, and all seemed actuated by a patriotic desire to present such a ticket as would consolidate and make effective the entire opposition to radicalism in the State.

The ticket is one around which the foes of Radicalism can rally with enthusiasm, and which we can present to the people with confidence. With such names, we can appeal to every friend of the Constitution and republican institutions, to take his place in our ranks, with no fears that the appel will be disregarded.

The names of John L. Helm and John W. Stephenson are the household words in Kentucky. The great talents and sterling integrity of these gentlemen, together with their valuable public services, have made them well and favorably known throughout the length and breadth of the State.

Probably no two men could have been presented who would have combined the same amount of talent and the same degree of popularity.

The following speech was made in the State Democratic Convention on the 22nd inst by Col. Wolford:

name is a tower of strength, and he
will carry this State by an overwhelming majority. He is a front rank man, and we shall feel honored when

Last Monday Leon Cuson sold his business house on Main street, to J. & A. Fennell, saddle makers of this city, for $5,500.

On Wednesday evening last, Mrs. Jack Trimble, had a paralytic shock, and died Thursday morning 22d of February.

Mr. John Lowe purchased of Wm. Skinner, at Lowe's Station, his house, blacksmith and wagon shop, and eighteen acres of land, for $3,200.

Dr. Chambers, of Gallatin County, a candidate before the convention for Congress, gave us a call last week.

Last week Judge Curry, of this county, sold his law library to Mr. McMillen, of Paris, for $350. The library contained some four hundred and fifty volumes.

L. T. Martin started south with the money for the relief of the famine-stricken widows and orphans of the masonic fraternity, last Monday.

Warren Lodge, No. 110, at Leesburg, in this county, donated $75 towards the suffering poor, widows and orphans of Masons in the South.

On Monday evening last, Feb. 19th at the grist mill of Mr. Hoover, at Lair's Station, John Burns, a young fellow of thirteen years, had his right foot crushed and his leg broken in the mill.

By an act of the present Legislature the terms of the Harrison Criminal Court will hereafter convene on Tuesday after the 3d Mondays in March and September.

P. Lilly, Esq., of Leesburg, has just returned from Alabama. He gives a doleful account of affairs in that state. We regret to learn that our friends there are about to leave the country entirely.

Last Tuesday we received a visit from our particular friend Frederick Scruggs, Esq., of Alabama. Mr. Scruggs will be remembered by our readers as the owner of the fast race horse "Red Oak." He is on a visit to his relative, Mr. C. A. Webster, of this city.

Next Monday night, the greatest musicians in this or any other country, will give one of their inimitable concerts at the court-house. The Saxtons are coming from Lexington, and we advise our friends to attend this concert. See advertisement.

C. Matlock, the mail messenger on the Express train, is one of the most accommodating and at the same time attentive business men in the post-office employ of the government. Would that we had more of the same sort.

Mr. J. B. Richardson, the latter of Lexington, Main street, No. 41, started for New York city, last Monday, where he will lay in a large and splendid assortment of new styles of hats, which he will sell cheaper than any other house in Lexington. Call then and get a new hat.

It is to be hoped that when an election takes place for Councilmen again in this city, that men will be put forward who desire the improvement, as well as the advancement of our town. No law should be that will keep out of our corporation, men of means, under any consideration. Everything should be done to invite emigration, not to disgust and drive away.

Harrison County, Feb. 25. The friends of M. D. Martin, Esq., desire to know if he will permit his name to go before the people of Harrison County as a candidate for the Legislature, subject to a decision of a convention of the Democratic party of the County. If he will he will receive support from MANY VOTERS.

The communication from our comrade in arms, signed "Vale," will appear very soon. In the meantime, bear in mind, old friend, that we have not forgotten you.

"Friend of my soul, this goblet stp,
I will chase the pensive tear,
'Tis not so sweet
As woman's lip,
But all 'tis more sincere."

Our friend Nebel, on Main street, has but few equals in this world. Last week he gave his friends one of the most sumptuous oyster suppers ever gotten up. He is prepared now, at his saloon, to furnish bivalves to order, cooked in the most modern styles. Our friends and the public generally should be certain to call and see him.

Next Tuesday night, March 5th, the Fenian's of this city, will give a grand ball at the Renkin House, for the benefit of Irish freedom, and the great and glorious cause of Irish Liberty. The committee of arrangements have made every preparation to have a good time generally, and those who love to participate in affairs of this kind will be able to enjoy themselves in a becoming manner. Music of the best kind has been secured.

Rev. L. D. Huston passed through this city last Monday, on his way to Covington. He has been preaching in Millersburg, where very interesting revival has been in progress for some time. During his stay in that place, fifteen new members were added to the church. His friends in Kentucky regret very much that he is about to give up this field of labor for Baltimore. It is hoped that he will return again soon. Rev. S. S. Deering is continuing the meeting and laboring zealously for the cause nearest his heart.

One of the best Monthly Magazine in America is Demorest's. The February number, is now before us, is par excellence, the best of months. Its steel engraving of fashions gives us the latest modes, exquisitely colored. A full page picture, printed in colors, of the ascent of the Mat-torhorn is unapproachable, and out-distances all rivalry in this branch. Demorest being the only publisher with the enterprise to risk a new process which most soon replace all others. Full-size patterns, and patterns for embroidery in profusion. In music, a bewitching waltz-song, "The Snow-Flake." Five scenes of lumbering in America, the last game, and thirty other illustrations. Poems, tales, and miscellany, too extensive to enumerate here. It must be examined to believe so much can be had for three dollars a year. Purchase a copy or subscribe.

The friends of turpikes in Harrison should arouse themselves to duty, and make a big effort to secure a good road to every precinct in the county. A law has been passed permitting the County Court to subscribe stock to every five miles of turnpike road which will be built by the people. The people should, under such circumstances, elect magistrates, favorable to the turpikes question, in the coming May election. Let us have good roads in Harrison. Spend a hundred thousand dollars to build turpikes and it will be like a man, improving his farm; it will add so much wealth to the country, enhance the value of every farm. The citizens of Harrison, and especially to those residing along and contiguous to the Falmouth road, are respectfully requested to meet at the Court-house in Cynthiana, on Saturday, March 9, 1867, for the purpose of discussing the propriety of building a turnpike road on the Falmouth road.

About two weeks ago Noah and Wm. Reneker, with their dogs, treed three coons in this county. The tree was hollow, and two of the coons were in the hollow at the foot. A hole was cut large enough for the dog to crawl in, which he did and very soon dispatched the two. The third one was up the hollow a few feet, and the dog took after him, until he reached the end of the hollow and the fork of the tree, some fifty feet from the ground. The coon went out on a limb, some seven or eight feet, pursued by the dog, and the coon finding himself cornered, made a counter-march and passed the dog and crawled back into the hollow. The dog was unable to come down, or move in any direction except forward, so the hunters determined to cut the tree down, which they did, and the dog hung to the limb until the falling tree had nearly reached the ground, when he jumped from the limb, and perceiving that the coon was about to escape, leaped for him, and caught and killed him, in less time than we have taken to tell the story. This is the first day we ever knew a dog to climb a tree. The story has been told us by a reliable gentleman and we can not but believe it. The people in Arkansas, have hogs that climb trees, which is doubtless true also.

DIED.

Mr. AARON A. GARNETT, this gentleman died after a brief illness, of typhoid fever on the 16th inst., at the residence of his brother-in-law, Mr. Leon Cuson, in the 26th year of his age.

We were not intimately acquainted with Mr. Garnett, but can sincerely say that we lament his death, and consider that in his demise our community has lost one of its best citizens. His departure seems to have occasioned wide-spread, unfeigned regret, for he was so affectionately regarded, while living, by a large circle of earnest friends, so warmly esteemed by his acquaintances, that when dead, we would have wondered had we not witnessed the great manifestation of profound grief we anticipated the tribute tear of heartfelt sorrow, and it was as deep as universal. Oh, it is eminently befitting in society that it thus deplores the decease of such an amiable, high-minded, young gentleman; for it plainly declares that the excellency of the good is not unnoticed, their virtues are not forgotten, their thoughts rise up to calibrate their names, as odoriferous incense ascends from the perpetual altar fires. Mr. Garnett was prompt and honorable in his business pursuits, courteous in bearing and genial towards everybody. For some years a worthy and consistent Christian he adorned his profession by a godly walk and pious conversation. His death though not remarkable, yet filled us with profound surprise; it seems but yesterday that we saw him in the busy, active walks of life to-day he lies cold and breathless in the last sleep that awaits us all. Indeed

"Mah born of woman is of few days and full of trouble. He cometh forth as a flower, and is cut down; he fleeth as a shadow, and continueth not."
"Yet asleep in Jesus," as we trust he is, his happy spirit is, but freed as a bird from his fretting prison cage, and is now basking in the sunlight of omnipotence, and delighting in the music and mingling in the melody of the angels.

"And I heard a voice from heaven saying, unto me, 'Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord, yea sayeth the spirit that they may rest from their labors and their works do follow them.'"

ASTROLOGY.

THE WORLD ASTONISHED.

At the wonderful revelations made by the great astrologist, Madame H. A. Perrigo. She reveals secrets no mortal ever knew. She restores to happiness those who, from doubtful events, catastrophes, crosses, in love, loss of relations and friends, loss of money, &c., have become despondent. She brings together those long separated, gives information concerning absent friends or lovers, restores lost or stolen property, tells you the business you are best qualified to pursue and in what you will be most successful, causes speedy marriages and tells you the very day you will marry, gives you the name, likeness and character of the person. She reads your very thoughts, and by her almost supernatural powers unveils the dark and hidden mysteries of the future. From the stars we see in the firmament—the malefic star that overcomes or predominates in the configuration—from the aspects and position of the planets and the fixed stars in the heavens at the time of birth, she deduces the future of mankind. Refuse, to consult the greatest astrologist in earth! It costs you but a trifle, and you may never again have so favorable an opportunity. Consultation fee, with likeness and all desired information $1. Parties living at a distance can consult the Madame by mail with equal safety and satisfaction to themselves, as if in person. A full and explicit chart, written out, with all inquiries answered, and likeness enclosed, sent by mail on receipt of price above mentioned. The strictest secrecy will be maintained, and all correspondence returned or destroyed. References of the highest order furnished those desiring them. Write plainly the day of the month and year, in which you were born, enclosing a small lock of hair. Address, Madame H. A. Perrigo, P. O. drawer 283, Buffalo, N. Y. Feb 28-1y.

KNOW THY DESTINY.

Madame E. F. Thompson, the great English astrologist, clairvoyant and psychometrist, who has astonished the scientific classes of the Old World, has now located herself at Hudson, N. Y. Madame Thompson possesses such wonderful powers of second sight, as to enable her to impart knowledge of the greatest importance to the single or married of either sex. While in a state of trance, she delineates the very features of the person you are to marry and by an instrument of intense power, known as the Psychometre, guarantees to produce a life-like picture of the future husband or wife of the applicant, together with date of marriage, position in life, leading traits of character, &c. This is no humbug, as thousands of testimonials can attest. She will send when desired a certified certificate or written guarantee, that the picture is what it purports to be. By enclosing a small lock of hair, and stating place of birth, age, disposition and complexion, and enclosing fifty cents and stamped envelope addressed to yourself, you will receive a picture and desired information by return mail. All communications sacredly confidential. Address in confidence, Madame E. F. Thompson, P. O. box 223, Hudson, N. Y.

REPARATOR CAPILLI.

Throw away false frizzes, switches and wig. Destructive of comfort and not worth a fig. Come aged, come youthful, ugly and fair. And rejoice in your own luxuriant hair.

Reparator Capilli, for restoring the hair upon bald heads (from whatever cause it may have fallen out) and forcing a growth of hair upon the scalp, it has no equal. It will force the beard to grow upon the smoothest face, in from five to eight weeks, or hair upon bald heads in from two to three months. A few ignorant practitioners have asserted that there is nothing that will force or hasten the growth of hair or beard. Their assertions are false, as thousands of living witnesses (from their own experience) can bear witness. But many will say, how are we to distinguish the genuine from the spurious? It certainly is difficult, as nine-tenths of the different preparations advertised for the hair and beard are entirely worthless, and you may have already thrown away large amounts in their purchase. To such we would say, try the Reparator Capilli; it will cost you nothing unless it fully comes up to our representations. If your druggists does not, keep it, send us one dollar and we will forward it, post-paid, together with a receipt for the money, which will be returned to you on application, provided entire satisfaction is not given. Address, W. L. Clark & Co., Chemists, No. 3 West Fayette street, Syracuse, N. Y.

A young lady returning to her country home, after a sojourn of a few months in the city, was hardly recognized by her friends. In place of a coarse, rustic, flushed face, she had a soft ruby complexion of almost marble smoothness, and instead of twenty-three she really appeared that of eighteen. Upon inquiry as to the cause of so great a change, she plainly told them that she used Crisper Coma, and considered it an invaluable acquisition to any lady's toilet. By its use any lady, or gentleman, can improve their personal appearance in a hundred fold. It is simple in its combinations, as natural as herself is simple, yet unsurpassed in its efficacy in drawing impurities from the skin and complexion. By its direct action on the cuticle it draws from it all its impurities, kindly healing the same, and leaving the surface as nature intended. It should be clear, soft, smooth and beautiful. Price $1, sent by mail or express, on receipt of an order by W. L. Clark & Co., Chemists, No. 2 West Fayette street, Syracuse, N. Y. The only American agents for the sale of the same.

CRISPER COMA.

Oh! she was beautiful and fair.
With starry eyes, and radiant hair.
Whose curling tendrils soft entwined,
Enchained the very heart and mind.

Crisper Coma, for curling the hair of either sex into wavy and glossy ringlets or heavy massive curls.
By using this article Ladies and Gentlemen can beautify themselves a thousand fold. It is the only article in the world that will curl straight hair, and at the same time give it a beautiful, glossy appearance. The Crisper Coma not only curls the hair, but invigorates, beautifies and cleanses it; is highly and delightfully perfumed, and is the most complete article of the kind ever offered to the American public. The Crisper Coma will be sent to any address, sealed and post-paid for $1. Address all orders to W. L. Clark & Co., Chemists, No. 3 West Fayette street, Syracuse, N. Y.

WONDERFUL BUT TRUE.

Madame Remington, the world renowned astrologist and somnambulist clairvoyant, while in a clairvoyant state, delineates the very features of the person you are to marry. And by an instrument of intense power, known as the Psychometre, guarantees to produce a perfect and life-like picture of the future husband or wife of the applicant, with date of marriage, occupation, leading traits of character, &c. This is no imposition, as testimonials without number can attest. By setting place of birth, age, disposition, color of eyes and hair, and enclosing fifty cents, stamped envelope addressed to yourself, you will receive the picture by return mail, together with desired information. Address in confidence, Madame Gertrude Remington, P. O. box 297, West Troy, N. Y.

DILTZ FLOW ATTACHMENT.

To the Farmers of Mason and Fleming Counties:

THE undersigned have witnessed the practical working of Mr. O. P. Diltz' flow attachment, and take great pleasure in testifying to its perfect utility. It does better plowing than can be done in the old-fashioned way, saves expense, and a boy ten years old can do the work of a man. The exhibition took place on my farm, on the 16th and 17th inst., and gave perfect satisfaction to all who witnessed it. We believe it will pay any man who has 50 acres of land to own one of them. The persons present were Dr. A. K. Marshall, G. L. Forman, H. Smoot, C. S. Smoot and about twenty other practical farmers, several of whom bought the attachment.

A. H. WALKER, M. D., of Martin D. Steele, of Washington, has bought the right for Mason County.

Express office, depot, saw mill and two excellent grist mills that manufacture the best quality of flour and meal. It is within 3 hours ride of Cincinnati and 1 1/2 of Lexington. The improvements consist of a comfortable dwelling, partly frame and partly log, weatherboarded and plastered and painted, containing six rooms, cook-house and all necessary out buildings, including two large stables, (with lofts for feed,) large enough to house and feed 75 mules at a time which can be done without going out doors. There is a large wide feed room, extending the whole length of the stables in which there is a cutting box run by horse power, with capacity and strength enough to cut a large quantity of provender in a short time. There is also a young orchard of select fruit of various kinds now bearing. The farm is supplied with abundance of pure water for all purposes. There is upon the farm a number of never failing springs, some of which run into a cistern, and South Lick, which runs along one side of it. Take Notice.
THAT heretofore Elijah Myers purchased of Wm. Arnold a tract of Land, in Harrison county, on the waters of Main Licking, containing about 59 acres, for the sum of $808.00 - that Myers then sold said land to Jos. Botts, and Botts afterwards sold said land to me, for $700, and I have paid to said Botts on said land the sum of $385 as follows: One note on David Florence for $130, due March 6th, 1867 - one note on David and Lucius Florence for $125, due March 6th, 1867, and one note on Wm. Hunt and Elijah Myers for $130, due March 6th, 1867, that said Botts when he sold me the land had no title to the same, and there was an encumbrance on the same for the purchase money due by Myers to Arnold and for $808, which facts were all concealed from me. Now therefore, I hereby notify all persons not to purchase any of the above notes of said Botts, and the obligors in said notes are hereby notified not to pay said Botts or any other person whatever.

PATENT MICA ROOFING.
THE New York Mica Roofing Company (established 1854) are manufacturing under letters patent the best article of composition roofing ever offered to the public. It is adapted to every style of roof, steep or flat, and can be readily applied by any one. The U. S. Government, after a thorough test of its utility, have adopted its use in the Navy Yards and upon the public buildings. The roofing is put up in rolls, and has only to be nailed to the roof to make a durable and water-proof covering.
We particularly recommend its use upon buildings, stores, churches, factories, machine-shops, stambord decks, &c.
MICA ROOFING PAINT.
For coating tin, iron or shingle roofs. It forms a body equal to three ordinary coats of paint.
No roof can rust under it, and water-leaky roofs may be made permanently water-proof and durable by its use.
The paint requires no mixing, but is ready to be applied by the ordinary paint brush. Price $1 per gallon, which will cover two hundred square feet.
